SHAKE YO MONEY. good game!!!!!! There's really not much to say about this one. What is about? You take control over this dude who's on the stage in front of someone who's dancing, and your main goal is to toss as much money as possible into them (by clicking). While you're trying to do that, you have to avoid random stuff falling from above, bullets coming from the sideways and also this annoying worm from below, everything with your keyboard, while also collecting some value multipliers to make the ordeal easier on your fingers. Depending on how much money you give, you receive a trophy, which only counts for the sake of achievements. The "story mode", only has a different background for every level and some other minor changes, and that's it. You can also get to select some different characters to control, and each one of them have their own "unique level", but that's pretty much it. I won't say anything about the graphics, because it's usually the last thing that concerns me (fun factor tops everything, after all). As for the music and sound effects, they're simply as basic as possible. I won't deny that there're some positive aspects about this game though: There're trading cards, it's really easy to obtain all the achievements, and the price is low (especially when it's on sale). Overall, if you're looking for a game to have fun, then skip it without thinking twice. If you're only interested in those secondary stuff that I've just described, then knock yourself out.. 5/5 Holy. The last thing I remember is darkness. As my car overturned on the highway, all I can remember is being dragged out onto the lonely road, then darkness. As I open my eyes, I notice surroundings that are unfamiliar to me. It is dim in the room, but I can make out a few shapes in the shadows. I try to move my arms and legs, but cannot. I struggle for a few moments, before giving up and taking note of how cold it is. I try to call out for help, but my mouth is gagged with some kind of cloth. Suddenly, the lights turn on. I look down to realize that I am dressed like a mime from the stomach down, but the bra I am wearing is not mine. I look up and see organs lining the wall, and. Is that a head? Oh my god, I have to get out, I have to get out, I. Oh, thank god, another person! He toddles up to me in a strange fashion before screaming at me to start dancing. Fearfully, I comply. The strange figure, though he is a few feet away, smells awful, his shirt streaked in what I hope isn't feces, his clothing in tatters, dirt caking his skin. His mouth cracks into a smile, his teeth missing. He reaches into his pocket, and I cringe in pain as he starts throwing change at me. The coins bounce off of my skin, leaving small welts, tears streaming from my face. The stranger moves back and forth, as if avoiding some object I cannot see, before ducking, getting back up, and starting over again. Flinching as the coins pelt me, the stranger takes this for agreement, and throws more coins at me. I fear I may die here. 2/10.. E.Wolf's -5 1. The game crashes on launch. 2. There is no explanation for the crash. 3. I was unable to find any solution. 4. It seems from the Steam Discussions that the developer, CharlieH, never did anything about this common issue. 5. I really enjoyed the CharlieH game Super Duper Flying Genocide 2017. It is a shame that this game was unplayable as I thought it would be even funnier.
